Becky,

Well I guess we went & did it.
Both of us will be married before we graduate. But I won't regret it, and know you won't either.

And also I want to wish you good luck in your marriage. May you always be happy. And we must keep in touch so we can

Becky,
where do I begin?! We have been friends every since you moved here in the 5th grade! We have had alot of good memories to look back on! I'll never forget the time we had to write a theme on being a lady!^{HA} The time I crammed those magic markers up your nose!^{HA} I've also had a blast playing softball with you! You are a very good player and we will need you this summer, so you better come out for it or you'll have me to deal with and you won't like that!!^{HA}
I also had fun playing on your brother's team with everyone! I really had a blast playing with you + Vicki! I think she is funnier than hell + she it would be nice to have her as a sister-in-law (if ya know what I mean) I wish you weren't graduating at mid-term because it would be nice to have you around the rest of the year! Becky, you have been a great friend + I will never forget ya for it! Thanks for helping me with Kevin. You really got me and I hope I have the chance to see you again
and you better keep in touch with me!

During the first year at Chaparral you learn all of the important things: Which way to turn for your next class, how long it takes to go from one end of the building to the other, and which Seniors to avoid. You get to know the teachers also; you learn that Freshmen teachers are more like Junior High teachers than you thought, that is all but Mr. Romans who has a very convincing way of saying "Run." And your interest in the opposite sex is developed by watching James Williams flirt.

Becky:
 We've had a good
 time these 4 years.
 Hope you have a really fine life after cts. Remember I'm always keeping you
 in the ones I see me.
 Love ya. C
 Mrs. C

The Blast off was successful; you're ready for the second year of your voyage. You learn even more about the place, the people. The constant sound of the radio, dozens of cans sitting in the hall the few times it rained, Mr. Ryman shooting his laser around the halls; you get to study Shakespeare again, a name you still hate. You see guys grouped in the halls rating girls on a scale of 1 to 10, you get to read Tale Of Two Cities, and you take biology so you can order your class rings.

Becky,
 To A real Sweet person that I'll never forget. I'm glad we've become good friends. And I hope I'll always ~~be~~ stay that way. It's been fun having you in Astronomy and I'll never forget the good times we've had and there more to come. Stay Sweet.

You are the most sweet outgoing person in CHS I know! You ~~have~~ have always been just like a sister to me. I can't help but love you like my own. Good luck to you and Mike.

Love ya,

Diane H.

When the journey is half over you begin some of the finer things in the universe: A locker on the east side, prom, Mrs. Puls waking you up in the library to say, "You were sleeping." You find yourself fascinated by little things: The gray footprints that come out of Mr. Gerber's room, go down the hall a short distance and then mysteriously disappear. Coaches standing in group, photography and journalism students wandering the halls each morning; the band flying to lunch to find Mr. High guarding the lunchline, watching for food fights and waiting for Tod Hostetler or Darin Jacobs to pop another milk carton. You see Mr. Brown wander aimlessly around the Commons, laughing at his own jokes and making conversation with anyone who will listen.

The last year of your voyage, you're now a Senior: The force is with you. You set out to hassel Freshmen, pass government and avoid listening to Bruce Oliver. Suddenly you realize you don't hate Shakespeare as much as you did and there is a bonus this year: Senior portraits in the yearbook. Then it comes down to A.C.T. Tests, college brochures, Mr. Baker, scholarship applications and the growing sense you may miss this place. Time for a new flight plan.

Becky,
 You're really a close friend who has always brightened

THE VOYAGE Story of the Year

That's Our Gals!

Last night I came out to the girls game. They have the best defense for a girl's team that I have ever seen. Cindy Liven-good in my opinion, is the best guard in the state. She has probably 9 or 10 steals a game. Linda Domnick is also very good at defense with great quickness to help out. When they are in the game together it's incredible how many steals and forced errors they get. Cindy is also a fine shooter and is a leader on the team. The team as a whole is short, but most tall girls are uncoordinated. If you can get a small quick team that will hustle and play defense like our girls, you can go a long way. They have determination and lots of confidence which are two of the biggest assets in basketball.

Our girls have the ability and the determination to win state, and I wasn't surprised when they did.

Left, Left, Left Right Left

Getting ready for marching festival at W.S.U. last October took everyone's concentration and cooperation. We took a little out of each football game performance and added a few more songs to make the routine we would use for contest. Mr. Hodges was more particular about this performance than for the football game performances because of the judges. He has a battery operated megaphone that he talks through to tell us to run back and do it again. Some days all we did was run back.

When the day finally came to perform before the judges, we were nervous. If we messed up Mr. Hodges would be very disappointed and Chaparral has such a good history of doing well, the pressure was really on. When we got on the track before marching onto the field, I was shaky and when I started to play, my hands would hardly move. But the long hard hours were worth it: We received the best rating in class 4A.

Where Do They All Come from.

At times it is lonely when you don't have a ton of friends around you and you listen to other people plan their Friday nights together. Even walking down the hall can be lonely sometimes, not having anyone to say hello to and being too timid to say hello. People don't realize why you walk around the hall not saying anything, and think you are stuck up. If only they knew.

To be a loner does have it's good points, if you can handle the loneliness. You never have to worry about any secrets getting around about you because no one knows any. You don't get in the middle of people's problems or friend's arguments. You may have some people you talk to sometimes, but they don't get too close to you, and you don't get too close to them. Friendships like that are easier to keep. But Friday nights can be tough.

Sometimes it is really upsetting trying to get the school spirit going. Sometimes at a pep rally when you are yelling your lungs out, you can see people with blank faces, a few talking to friends, lovers doing whatever, and students that look like they're getting ready to run the 50-yard dash out the door. They would leave if it weren't for the teachers, and then a few leave before the school song is over in spite of the teachers. Sometimes you want to give up, go sit in the crowd and let someone else do the job. The cheerleaders don't work like athletes, but sometimes they have twice as hard a job.

American History is something everyone has to go through to complete high school. Every day it's the same thing; you walk in and are mobbed by pink slip paper airplanes. Curt Clark plays his song for the day on his harmonica and Mr. Beam begins his lectures with a "Five Miles Through the Snow" story, occasionally blowing a bubble. Yearbook is one of the best classes I've been in since my freshman year. It is mainly because of the teachers, and of course the hard working students that surround me. We all seem to work together as a team. When one of us is gone someone in the group usually does their work for them so they won't get behind. I ought to know because I'm usually the one gone. The teachers are a model for our work and our behavior with the exception of Mr. Roberts. Mr. Hottman acts normal mostly, but every once in a while he loses his temper. The main reason this class makes me feel good is because of Mr. Roberts. I've never felt more comfortable around anyone before; I guess it's because when I look at him I realize how fortunate I am.

Thanks to you, Mom! I am together. Remember the rite that you introduced us? That was a wild one wasn't it? I better shut up before I get you in trouble! Ha!

But thanks so much for that cuz I think the world of Mom!

also thanks to you I will always look upon my summer of '81 as nothing but loads of fun and lots of laughs. And you made my first year of senior softball really enjoyable. No matter what anyone says it was you that carried us to state! Remember taking Mike's car to all our away games? and when we drove Larry's car to Pratt?! Curves at 80 m.p.h! Whew! Prom Panic

Prom is not only a time for everyone to have a good time, but it is also a memorable time for the junior class that puts it on. Prom work nights are a good chance to work together to make a really great prom for everyone.

You might even meet someone you didn't know very well by working with them on a project. When everything comes out looking great and everyone has a good time you know all your hard work and planning has paid off.

You might start wondering in the last couple of weeks, "Are we going to get done in time?" But in the last couple of days all the decorations and arrangements will somehow fall into place and will come out looking beautiful.

A One, and a Two

Everyone must be in their chair playing scales by the time the tardy bell rings. If someone isn't playing by that time, they are last in lunchline for that day. We warm up for fifteen minutes, then practice contest music. Mr. Hodges tells us to learn the notes and fingerings so we can start making music. He's always telling the freshman drummers to be quiet and make sure all the percussion parts are covered. The trombone players are always squirting water at someone, throwing things, taking drum sticks or talking back to Mr. Hodges under their breath. When twelve thirty finally rolls around we put up our instruments and go to lunch, one row at a time. Mr. Hodges reminds us not to cut in line or run down the hall as we leave the band room.

All golfers worship ABOO. For ABOO to be with you at golf tournaments you must sacrifice a ball to him. You do this by hitting a scrubby ball into the lake. If you do this you will never have any problems with out of bounds, or water. The only golfer who does not worship ABOO is Mr. Buck, our coach. That he does not is apparent from his inability to break "50" for nine holes. ABOO also means "boggie" in Irish.

From End to End

Nose paper is more useful than text books in this school. Kleenex has nuns singing about their softness and school children sing about the decorator boxes. Secretaries give up their tennis game to stay home with their puffs. Toilet paper is not exciting to us; we have a roll in each classroom and a roll in the hall for Mr. Ryman's picture of the galaxy. If we could just get one box of Puffs, Mr. Ryman could make the softest galaxy money can buy.

Friday Fun?

I almost miss the bus because I can't decide what to wear. When I decide, I end up wearing clothes that make me hot all day.

The day starts with Mr. Harmon shouting, "Oh, what a beautiful day in Kakeland," and then reading the lunch menu. Since it's Friday, I feel kind of lazy and clean my purse instead of reading.

Second hour I give mouth to mouth to a dummy. I forgot to take the gum out of my mouth. Before I know it, it goes shooting out onto the floor. Luckily, I didn't choke Recessi Annie.

Third hour flies by just fine, singing in Chaparral Singers. Lunch time. While scarfing down the luscious fish, Tammie gripes because she has yesterday's cake on her plate.

Lunch time is over and, as usual, Mr. Buck brings out the Friday Geometry Pop Test which should only take 15 minutes but takes the whole hour.

Fifth hour is a joy sitting in the library listening to Abbey make clever jokes, watching Eileen make goo goo eyes, while Lana points out all the hunks in an Alabama yearbook.

The cafeteria is screaming during the Coke break. Mrs. Puls won't take a free half of a can of Coke but does take a couple of Skittles. Mr. Roberts is in dream world number three.

And here I am in last hour writing and hoping this hour will go a little faster. It's a beautiful day outside and in a few minutes, it's the weekend!

Please Excuse the Interruption . . .

The office is the center of activity in the school. Everyone should be an office proctor at least once. It's not hard work, it's mostly just taking phone calls from people who leave messages. The first mistake I made was when the Superintendent called for Mr. Brown and I accidentally pushed the wrong button to hang up on the Superintendent.

Another fun thing is turning on the radio for a class. If you push the button up instead of down you turn on the intercom instead of the radio. The whole class gets to listen to everything you and the other proctors talk about. What is bad is when the girl you are talking about is in that classroom! Being an office proctor is also fun because you get to see who gets called to the office and why.

May the road rise

Chaparral Singers work hard all year. When the year starts we are already working on musical. After the musical, it's right back to work on the Christmas concert. Then back to work on contest music which is a lot of work and a little yelling from Mr. B. at times. Even before contest is over we begin to work on Pop Concert music. Being in Chaparral Singers is a lot of work at times, but being in Chaparral Singers can be very special.

If you are in Chaparral Singers you are a part of a big family which is very close at times. You can feel the closeness especially when the group is holding hands and singing "The Old Irish Blessing." Chaparral Singers is a very special group under Mr. B, a family, with "The Old Irish Blessing" as a tie.

Wrestling Rah-Rahs

Being wrestling cheerleader when the school changes coaches can be confusing. You get to know the wrestlers, coaches and even the managers. You are with them so much of the time, and it's really a lot of fun. I wasn't sure if the new coach would like having the cheerleaders around. Everything turned out great with Mr. Rochholz. He's young enough to tease with, but he's old enough to respect as an experienced coach and teacher. We had fun this wrestling season. It was quite an experience, especially during state wrestling. Everyone got along great and I felt like we were part of the team.

The Toughest Opponent

Getting beat out at state was terrible, but getting beat for me was just horrid anyway. I went knowing what was needed, and I beat my first kid. I was really drawing in confidence. Then everyone came up to me and said that my next guy was good, and I would have to wrestle my very best. I psyched myself out. I went out on the mat and he beat me: just what I thought would happen.

The next day I was ready to win 3rd place, and I won my first round. In my second round I knew that if I won this one, I would be facing someone that had beaten me 3 times already. I didn't feel like going on. The real reason I got beat out at state was I beat myself.

Better Luck Next Time

It's time for grade cards again. You have to figure out a good excuse for getting a C and a D when last nine weeks you made all B's. You have to worry if your parents are going to start making you stay home at nights; if they're going to let you see your boyfriend or girlfriend during the week; if they're going to ground you. Grades can really affect your life.

Grades can make you feel good sometimes; they can also bum you out. When you really work hard on a long paper or test and make a good grade, it can give you a boost of self-esteem, especially if you have a teacher that's a tough grader. Then comes the time when you feel you've done a good job on a test but you didn't. You make a rotten grade and the person next to you, that didn't study, gets an A: that's when grades can really bum you out. Grades can get you grounded, give you self-esteem or really bum you out. Come to think of it, they're a lot like having a boyfriend.

be there right behind you. We have had some of the wildest, but unforgettable times ever. Don't worry we'll have plenty more no matter what. I'm going to school next fall and when I come home you better be here ~~to~~ right where I can find you. I better be the first to know when you and Mike decide to start having "junior Giesons!" HA! HA! I envy how you have your life so in place. You know just what you want out of life and that's about 100 steps ahead of me. You know if there is ever anything you need that I will be there for absolutely anything! I love you just like you were part of my family. I wish you the best of luck and happiness there could be for Mike and you and that God holds you both in the palm of his hand.

A Cheerleader's View

The referee's whistle blows and the boys begin circling. Sometimes just hoping not to get pinned is what goes through their mind. I've seen it many times in the faces of wrestlers I have cheered for in the past three years. I saw the uncertainty of Johnny Helms in his first match as a freshman. As he went through his years of becoming an excellent wrestler I have watched him conquer another hopeful wrestler. As he was successful, I felt successful; he was the first wrestler I have ever cheered for going for first at state. It was a great experience that I won't forget.

Beginners luck

When I had driver's ed I drove with two freshmen who could barely see over the steering wheel, much less steer the car. It gets a little spooky when you are riding down the highway too fast, and the driver can't see the road.

When we were practicing backing up, one of the girls hit a pole that was behind the car. The pole was short, but she knocked it over and got it stuck under the car. Mr. Elmore had to drive it off the pole.

The funniest thing that happened in driver's ed was when we started using the clutch and practicing whiplash injuries from the car jerking. The hardest thing about driver's ed is to keep from laughing at the person who is driving.

Freshmen always have the honor of starting off high school math with Mr. Adams. He's a tough man with a fantastic mind. He frequently talks about things some of us will never ever hear about.

He's always lecturing on great men in mathematics, and he knows a lot about them. He also lectures on the importance of mathematics. "Everyone who is anyone needs it." His favorite example is computer workers. He believes this is the occupation in everyone's future.

He must have a great desire to teach because he does it so well. He must really believe in kids.

The End

Last Friday I ended my career in basketball at Chaparral. We had a pretty good season. We were only the second team to tie or win the league title in Chaparral history. The biggest disappointment in our season was the semi-finals of the sud-state tournament. We beat Andover in the first round and were up against a tough team, Rose Hill. They were ranked 4th in the state and came to the tournament with an undefeated record. We knew that we had a chance to win if things would go our way.

I could tell in the first few minutes of the game that it was going to be a long night. The first quarter was all fouls, on us of course, and the second quarter we couldn't make any baskets. At the end of the first half I could tell that this was my last game.

At first I didn't really feel bad about losing because I was so happy there wouldn't be any more practice. After the game I started feeling sad because I realized that I had lost more than practices. I lost a lot of good times with my friends. Six years of playing with these guys and all of a sudden it's over.

The coaches Clan: Beam, Schierling, Rochholz, Buck, Shurley, and Elmore. They stand in front of the library every morning to rate girls, spread rumors, and catch up on gossip. Beam blows a bubble and sees a new love fling to tease some junior about. Adams scratches his chin and sees a freshman that might make a good football player after all. Buck gets one of his daily cartoons from his Geometry Class. Elmore chews his fingernails in nervousness as he remembers who will be driving him to Wichita that day, and Rochholz finds a Wrestling Rah Rah to flirt with for a while. Shurley keeps walking into his room to make sure no one is trying to steal the Government Test, and Mr. Schierling looks over his girls who, because there is a game tonight, are in dresses.

Advantages

It's great when your best friend proctors the same hour as you do. You can meet in an empty room and gossip about everyone and everything. You watch the people skipping class and Bob chasing girls and staring at the classes. Since I proctor for Mr. Adams, I have access to the computer. I have achieved the highest score (439) so far, in the Brick Out game. The average is in the 100's. But I also type tests, file papers, and do all the little jobs the teachers don't like to do.

Student Survey A Student View of the World

Many news stories happened that stick in the minds of C.H.S. students. We saw great things happen such as the space shuttle performing perfectly on it's first space outing, the hostages finally released after 444 days of captivity, Ronald Reagans defeat of incumbent President Jimmy Carter and the grain embargo lifted.

There were also "not so great things" happening. John Lennon was shot and killed in New York, President Reagan wounded by an assassins bullet in Washington D.C. and Pope John Paul II in Rome.

For the fourth year, the Paisano staff asked students what else was important to them in 1980-81? Their responses provided insights into the personalities, fad and favorites of this school year.

Board of Education Superintendent Smith; State Master Teacher 1981

Byron C. Smith, Superintendent of USD 361, has been named one of seven winners of the 1981 Kansas Master Teacher award given annually by Emporia State University.

Mr. Smith has been superintendent for fourteen years. Mr. Smith was hired by USD 361 to help pass the already once-defeated bond issue to build a new high school. In these fourteen years he has seen his initial mission accomplished in the form of Chaparral High, the successful and celebrated home of the Roadrunners.

Though Mr. Smith's expertise is in personnel, school finance, bond issues and building programs, his major interest is the success of the students.

Harper County NEA, in submitting his nomination wrote, "for a man five years from retirement who has served at the 'top' for thirty-two of his thirty-four years amid the ups and downs of Kansas education, he is indeed a man of experience in our state. Those who know him admire his wit and cherish his friendship. They are well aware of his just and fair discipline and his demands for excellence. There are few in his field who can match his record in the state of Kansas."

Principal Brown Leaves C.H.S.

Chaparral Principal George Brown leaves Chaparral at the end of the 1980-81 school year to take the position of Superintendent of USD 321 in north-eastern Kansas. The school district, which includes St. Marys, Rossville, and other small towns, is located between Topeka and Manhattan.

Brown has served as principal of Chaparral since 1976 when he came from Marysville.

Becky,

We've had a lot of fun times & we've shared a lot of secrets. I hope you and Mike have a great future together.
Make sure you invite me to your wedding at least. If you need any help getting it together,
I'd love to help. Keep in touch.
And if you think of it,
you can give me ~~you~~ my present

P.S.

Bucky,
 You're a real sweet gal and I've really missed ya. You've got a hold of a great guy & you better stay with it! I'll always think of you when I think of softball. Just keep up the potential and you'll be the best. Be good & last year have as much fun as you can.
 Better keep a touch.
 Love ya

Becky,
Well, we're finally Srs.
can you believe it! I remember when we were in basketball together talking about how you met Mike.
You're really a terrific person & you have a lot going for you! Good Luck in all you do!

Love ya,

Becky, ☺
 It's been great havin'
 you around these 3 years.
 It's made school a whole lot brighter! You crazy chick!! What I'll can I say... give me time & I'll think of somethin' I'm sure I can keep in touch. No babies please!
 I'll fix mashed potatoes!
 love 4-ever

 Splat!

Becky!
 To a real friend I am glad we have been friends & I hope
 you have a good
 future with Mike.
 Friends of Johnna

Beck,
 We know you for along time. This is our last year of school together then we go out in the big world. Ha! Really good luck always
 Love
 Johnna

Becky-

To a sweet & crazy
gal thats a blast to be around. Remember all the wild & crazy times we've had. Stay crazy. we'll go party sometime. Take care.

Love

Becky,

You know I love
ya and your friendship
means alot to me, & you special to me since we both share the same
hobbie (Horses).

Take care, I hope God
sends you the very best

Love ya

Jayne

Becky-

We have had a lot of fun, especially in softball. Don't forget Abilene. Beck, no matter what you think I always have liked
you & always will.
Sometimes I just act like a bitch. Keep in touch. Good Luck w/
Mike. Keep in touch.

Love,

Claudia

Becky-
You're a very special friend and I love ya to death! You and Mike deserve all the happiness in the world and with your determination, I'm sure you'll get it. Beck - I love ya & don't you forget it!
I always -
Cathy (your K.H. Bud)

Becky,
I really didn't get to know
you until this year.
I am glad we have become friends. You are a blast to eat lunch with
esp. ya always.

KEEP in touch

Becky - you silly girl!
I laugh every time I see you!
Whenever I see you I can just picture your body with the head of Amos! I'll never forget when he started barking at your horse. Remember when you threw your dunstuck in bands. We used to laugh so hard in bands. I know there's a lot more to say but I got interu cramp. Don't forget me when you laugh your way to stardom!
May a magic marker write all over you in your sleep! I'm gonna tell Gloria!
Love you always
Tim Shue

Becky, it's been really nice to get to know you.
You were really nice to me since I came to Chaparral. You are really a fun person to be around.
When you are around
there is never a dull moment! I wish you & Mike the best when you get married. You deserve it. I hope to still see you after we graduate. Keep in touch. Your friend
Lisa Lagers ☺
